

The Corporation of the Town of Ingersoll

March 8th 2013 – For Immediate Release

This morning General Motors has announced new $250 million investment in the CAMI Assembly plant in Ingersoll. This investment will upgrade the facility to a flexible manufacturing facility to support future vehicle production. Construction is expected to begin in the coming weeks and these changes will allow CAMI to build a wider variety of products on different platforms and at lower costs.

The investment was announced this morning via press release and full details of the release are available at:

“This is excellent news for Ingersoll and the surrounding area” says Ted Comiskey, Mayor of Ingersoll. “Continued investment by General Motors is recognition for the quality products our workforce generates here in Ingersoll.”

“Ingersoll’s relationship with CAMI spans over 25 years and we are delighted to see further development and improvement of the facility by General Motors and we look forward to a prosperous future.”
